I have tried to apply the same approach to the ccna exam, but I don't think that the credentials are the same. A: It looks like you have some blank lines in your first entry and thus you end up with an empty file. I fixed it by copying my file into a new one after you cut the blank lines. Q: How to get non-constants from certain types? How would I go about extracting the non-constant parts of a list of types that take a functor and return the functor's result? For example, template struct foo { F f; F(const F& f) { this->f = f; } F(F&& f) { this->f = std::move(f); } }; // extract only member members? template constexpr auto apply(F& f) noexcept -> decltype(f.apply()) { return f.apply(); } // or maybe only the member templates? template constexpr auto apply(const F& f) noexcept -> decltype(f.apply()) {
