We have thus shown that weight is a measure-compatible function if and only if it is a convex function. Hence, the theorem is proved. It is well-known (see for instance [7, p. 354]) that, in every convex set, the function is locally Lipschitz-continuous, which means that, for every , there exists a constant such that, for every and every , it holds that (12.3) As can be easily seen, this condition can be rephrased as follows: For every , there exists a constant such that, for every and every , we have (12.4) We are now ready to state the following theorem. Theorem 12.4. A function defined on a convex space is locally Lipschitz-continuous if and only if it is a measure-compatible function. Proof. First, assume that is a measure-compatible function. Define on the convex space by the extension of (see (12.2)).

For every , the functional is convex by Theorem 12.
